

Dating AND Violence should never go hand-in-hand!

1 in 3 teen relationships are abusive.

Dating and relationship violence is about the use of power and control.

Dating and relationship violence often starts with possessiveness, jealousy, put downs and other controlling behaviors which sometimes lead to physical violence.

Dating and relationship violence can happen to anyone.

Young people today are more vulnerable than ever through constant communication technologies.

“Eyes Wide Open . . . relationship awareness”

A comprehensive domestic violence prevention through education series offered by the YWCA.

Session 1: Components of Unhealthy Relationships (Forms of Abuse, Cycle of Violence)

Session 2: Recognizing Warning Signs, Setting Boundaries and Communication

Session 3: Safety planning, Q & A Session

These issues are addressed through dialogue, and interactive activities. The YWCA encourages students in abusive relationships to talk to their parents, school guidance counselors or YWCA advocates.
