From World War I to the 1970s, around six million black Americans fled the American South for an uncertain existence in the urban North and West. They left all they knew and took a leap of faith to find freedom. This became known as the Great Migration.

Isabel Wilkerson is the featured speaker for YWCA's 23rd Annual Women of Distinction awards banquet, to be held Thursday, May 24. For event info, go to www.ywca.org/womenofdistinction.
