

YWCA Centennial Capital Campaign

Creating a Place for Hope...

The YWCA's Centennial Capital Campaign will fund a new Crisis Shelter and Residence for Women and Children and a confidential walk-in Center for Families—to expand and enrich programs and services for victims of family violence, and provide the foundation for a more coordinated community response that includes prevention, intervention and accountability.

Kathleen Robison Huntsman Apartments

*Lolie Eccles
Child Care and Teen Home*

Crisis Shelter and Residence for Women and Children

The new residence, adjacent to the YWCA's campus, will include two connected wings consisting of short-term domestic violence crisis and extended shelter, and long-term transitional housing along with child-centered spaces. The YWCA estimates that the residence will increase the number of beds available in the YWCA main building by at least 50%.

Center for Families

The YWCA Center for Families will have two primary purposes: first, to offer welcoming, confidential walk-in services for women who need information and referral, education, support, and counseling related to family violence. Second, the Center will work with private and public partners to co-locate a variety of existing victim-centered domestic violence services under one roof. The YWCA estimates that an additional 2,000 women and children will be reached through the Center for Families annually.

Family violence is at the heart of public health and safety: it devastates families, reaches across generations, and strains public and private resources. Last year the YWCA was unable to fill more than 888 requests for shelter because the residence was full.

Centennial Capital Campaign Cost:

• New Residence for Women and Children
○ Crisis Shelter	$ 7,000,000
○ Short and Long-term Housing	$ 7,000,000
• YWCA Center for Families	$ 4,000,000
Phase I Total	$18,000,000

When: The YWCA's Centennial Capital Campaign will fund Phase I of the YWCA's long-term master plan. The new facilities will be phased in to ensure that homeless women and children at the YWCA are not displaced during construction, to complete business planning to sustain the expansion, and to secure needed capital funding. The YWCA hopes to break ground for the new residence in 2008.

How: Gifts for the campaign will be pledged over a three-year period from 2008 through 2010. We ask you to join us as we create this place for hope—for generations to come. Please call Carrie Romano, the Campaign Manager, at 573.3372 or email cromano@ywca.com to find out how you can help.

YWCA of Salt Lake City
A voice for women. A force for change. A place for hope. Since 1906.